Developing property as downtown grocery could anchor other improvements

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Madison Redevelopment Commission made a major commitment Tuesday toward bringing a new grocery store to downtown Madison by giving Mayor Bob Courtney authorization to enter into negotiations for purchase of the former Ruler Foods grocery building.

The 10,000 square foot building building, located at 120 East Second Street, includes an adjacent parking lot and has served as several grocery stores in the past but not since Rulers closed in 2018.

"We believe that is a vital part of our revitalization efforts in that corridor," said Madison

Courtney announces major upgrade to Gaines Park

BY MARK CAMPBELL

On a night when Madison Mayor Bob Courtney proclaimed February as Black History Month throughout the city, it was only fitting that he also announced major upgrades to a city park located on the grounds where Indiana's first commissioned high school for black children once stood.

Gaines Park, which is located on the grounds of the former 1880 Broadway School in downtown Madison, has been slated for about $500,000 in improvements over the next few years to include shelters, a new playground and basketball court, an

Johnny & Sallie are coming to town with recording studio, ice cream shop in tow

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

"First of all, our names aren't really Johnny and Sallie," explains Catherine Evans. "My husband (Brent Evans) wrote a song called The Ballad of Johnny & Sallie, and just for fun he introduced us on the stage that way one night. People seemed to respond to it, so we played along."

"Sometime later I was trying to book a gig," Brent explains, picking up the story, "and this venue owner says to me, we don't want Brent and Catherine, we want Johnny and Sallie! Who am I to argue? I told them Johnny and Sallie you shall have!"

Brent and Catherine Evans are an experienced and well-established musical duo out of Rochester, Indiana, a small town about two hours north of Indy. Catherine has an ice cream business called "Sallie's By The Shore" that she runs out of a converted 1953 Vagabond travel trailer, and Brent owns a recording studio.

So why are we doing a story about some out of town musicians in Madison's music column? Because Johnny & Sallie (Brent & Catherine) are moving to town about a month from now. We're getting two great musicians, a recording studio and an ice cream shop all in one fortuitous fell swoop.

"We played the Swiss Wine Festival in Vevay some years back," explains Catherine. "And after we were done we wandered down the river to explore Madison. It's fair to say it was love at first sight. And the more we learned about the town, the more we

Hanover approves building, zoning officer on trial basis

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Town of Hanover is moving forward on a trial basis with the creation of a Building Permits, Zoning and Nuisance Officer after receiving unanimous support from Hanover Town Council at its meeting Tuesday night.

The board allocated $11,000 toward the part-time, $16-per-hour position that will be three days per week for six months beginning in April and continuing through September.

"There's a lot to it. It's not a sit down easy job but it's going to be a busy job especially to get started with all the things we want done with this position, and this is a trial to see how it works for us, and if it's going to work for us, and if it does, it may turn into something full-time" said Council President Kenny Garrett. "It's something we've needed for a while, and obviously we need to clean the town up. We have to have someone taking on the challenge of taking up that position."

The board allocated $11,000 toward the part-time, $16-per-hour position that will be three days per week for six months beginning in April and continuing through September.

Council member Debbie Kroger agreed, "This is going to give people a contact for the town. This person might have some resources that they can relay. That's our goal is to help people. We're not wanting to fine people. We're wanting to give a chance to clean up Hanover. This is a chance to clean up Hanover."

Keith Mefford, the city's clerk/treasurer, agreed that the person in the new position could work to help encourage people in the community to assist in their efforts to haul away nuisance items. "The important thing is whether the building permit side or the nuisance side, it has to be somebody encouraging people to work with us."

"I think it's going be the building permit, once we get it the way we want it, it will be fine, but the nuisance part lasts forever," said Garrett, noting the town just needs to have processes in place to keep it under control.

Along with that, Mefford said Hanover will begin the process of restructuring the town's building fees and regulations since Hanover's fees are well below neighboring communities "Our fees are about one-tenth" of nearby communities, Mefford said, adding Hanover needs to work toward a more comparable fee structure, and with better establishing requirements.

"We need a true plan of action," said Mefford, so the new Building Permits, Zoning and Nuisance Officer "will understand how the process works."

In another business:

• Scott Williams, superintendent of Streets and Utilities, announced that purchase of a new XRipper grinder for the auger at the sewer treatment plant has been delayed. At the Jan. 19 meeting, the council had approved $15,620 for the purchase, but since then Williams has determined that a new bar screen is needed, and that may actually be what's required to resolve the issue. "We decided to hold off until we get more information," Mefford said, adding the issue will be brought back before town council at a future meeting.

• Don Server, who is leading the town's efforts to develop a five-year plan for Hanover parks, asked the town council to choose its top five needs for the park as part of a needs analysis that is required for the town's application to the Indiana Department of Natural Resources for a Land and Water Conservation Fund grant to fund improvements to the parks system. He said the parks committee is also in process of surveying local residents to determine the top five needs as expressed by the community. Server sad the grant will require a match from the town, and Kroger suggested the town council consider a "working session to see where we can get matching money."

• Mefford said bids for street paving funded by a state Community Crossing Grant will be taken in March. It was announced in the Jan. 19 meeting that the town has received $332,298 through that grant.

• Approved $6,545 to pay for All Star Paving for concrete work that had been done in Hanover Community Park.

Jennings man facing child soliciation charge

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Jennings County man has been arrested for child solicitation in a case allegedly involving a 15-year-old girl after local authorities began investigating a social media post by a local "Predator Patrol" citizens group.

Wayne Denney

"Predator Patrol" members had posted on social media that Wayne Denney Jr., 62, of Jennings County, had made sexual references to a child he believed to be a 15 year old girl. All information and possible evidence was turned over to the Jennings County Sheriff's Office and, once jurisdiction was established, an investigation was immediately initiated by detectives.

Jennings County Det. Sgt. Jeff Jones and Sgt. Allen Ritchie interviewed Denney concerning the allegations on Feb. 2, and Denny was subsequently arrested and lodged in the Jennings County Jail on one count of child solicitation, a Level 4 felony.

Denney is currently being held in the Jennings County Jail without bond while awaiting an initial court appearance and bond hearing.

Jennings County Sheriff Kenny Freeman said that he and his department will "aggressively seek out sexual offenders or anyone that attempts to commit any harm, especially to a child."

area to hold cookouts and a community garden to be used by residents.

Courtney said the park has been allowed to sit unimproved — in fact decaying — for long enough and with the support of city council he intends to make it the first of several neighborhood parks to be beautified and revitalized so that they may once again be a center of activity in their communities.

The project is part of an overall overhaul of the city's system of 29 parks. The groundwork was laid last month when a new fee structure was approved for three the city's revenue producing parks — Sunrise Golf Course, Crystal Beach pool and Madison Campground — aimed at making them more self-sufficient so that a greater share of the city's $1.6 million annual parks budget can be spent on non-revenue-producing parks that were once centerpoints of their neighborhoods but are now less utilized because they have fallen into decay.

Gaines Park is actually not one of the city's less used parks. It continues to serve as a gathering place for the Broadway neighborhood and for black people who attended Broadway School and their families and friends. Annual events are held to celebrate black history and the history of the school that educated the city's black children until Madison integrated schools in the 1950s. The Broadway School building then continued to serve as a community center until it was lost to an arson fire in 1969.

Mark Campbell

Courtney announced the proposal at Tuesday's Madison City Council meeting and provided an architectural rendering of what Gaines Park might look like upon completion. He said the rendering is just a starting point and there will be time for residents to have input in the future but the end goal is a park that is a more vibrant place for people to gather and recreate and a community garden that will allow residents to join other neighbors in growing food, flowers to further beautify the neighborhood.

"As we restructure our parks department, we will turn our attention to our neighborhood parks which have suffered significant deferred maintenance over the years. Gaines Park brings significant history to our community so I think it is only prudent that we prioritize it first," Courtney said. "The renderings provide a concept and vision for how important our parks are to our quality of life. Strong neighborhoods create a strong community and I am looking forward to community discussion about Gaines Park."

He said Gaines may take a few years to complete — finding $500,000 is not easy — but once Gaines is upgraded the hope is for it to serve as an example for other park upgrades.

"We don't have to do it all at once, but we should be able to take this footprint and concept and apply it to any of our other parks like Oak Hill, Lorenz and others," Courtney said.

Councilman Curtis Chatham asked if improvements at Gaines would include bathrooms on site. Courtney said that is not part of the initial plan but it could be considered later.

"We do know that we need to put bathrooms in at some of our community parks," Courtney said. "But that will probably be decided by usage."

Courtney also noted that the plans at Gaines Park are part of an overall effort to beautify Madison, make it more inviting and energize neighborhoods (See: Ruler Purchase, Page A1) which should improve quality of life and property values.

In other city council business:

• Heard the first reading of a rate increase for the city's waste transfer station where all garbage dropped off at the hilltop location will cost $62 a ton for disposal. The current rate was $62 per ton for loose trash and $52 per ton for compacted trash and the new rate will be one fee for either.

• Heard a report that the Eighth Street sidewalk to Madison Junior High School on Madison's hilltop is completed except for some fencing in an area with a drop off. The city will partner with Cub Manufacturing at Madison Consolidated High School to design, construct and install a metal fence with the MCHS Art Department creating original visual artwork on the fencing .

• Heard a report by Matt Wirth, economic development director, that Jefferson County's jobless rate is now 3.9%, slightly better than the 4.0% in Indiana and well improved from the 4.4% rate a month earlier. He said some employers who are currently hiring are "starting to struggle to find employees."

• Heard a report by Madison Police Chief John Wallace that Kayla Moore, currently an employee at the Jefferson County Jail and an Indiana National Guard member, has been hired for the department's job opening. The police department now has three female officers.

• Heard the second and third readings and adopted an ordinance placing a three-way stop at Ross Street and Highland Drive on Madison's hilltop.

• Received notification by Courtney that Mike Armstrong has been appointed to the city's Planning Commission, Darrell Henderson was named to the Board of Zoning Appeals and Debbie Crawford was named to the Cable Advisory Board.

In Remembrance Of

Betty Francisco Copeland

Betty Francisco Copeland, 95, passed away January 27, 2021 in Salt Lake City, Utah where she and her husband of 72 years, Frank Wood Copeland, were living to be near their daughter. Born Elizabeth Millar Francisco in Madison, Indiana to the late Alice Joyce Millar and Van Edwin Francisco, Betty was born May 24, 1925. She grew up in Wirt, Indiana knowing the Great Depression and World War II. Much of her family's farm was placed into the United States Jefferson Proving Ground in 1941. Betty graduated from North Madison High School in 1943 and Hanover College in 1948. She was a member of the Phi Mu sorority and was active in local chapters most of her life. She worked at the Jefferson Proving Ground and Clifty Falls State Park to pay for college. Following graduation, she and Wood married and moved to Detroit, Michigan. They lived in Michigan for 35 years where they raised their four children. They retired to Wirt in 1984 on land that was formerly part of her family farm. They lived in Texas for 3 years then returned to Indiana in 2009.

Much of Betty's life was devoted to the service of others. She was constantly involved with her children's education and maintained high expectations. She was particularly proud of helping all her children get their bachelor's degrees (and two master's degrees). She was an admired substitute teacher for 31 years in Detroit and Madison. Betty repeatedly cared, cooked, baked and, in certain cases, completely managed the lives of neighbors and relatives in need with a constant sense of Christian outreach. Betty was an active member of the Catholic Church throughout her life. The core of her faith brought her an inner peace that most people seldom experience. When challenged with two unrelated cancers over 25 years, she survived and thrived with a selfless grace and charm. When she was in need, she was thankful and appreciative of all those that cared for her.

Betty and Wood enjoyed their retirement and traveled to see their children and grandchildren across the country. Their family camping trips across Michigan and Canada were memorable for everyone. They traveled to Turkey, South America, Hawaii, and Alaska, meeting new friends throughout their journeys.

Betty was preceded in death by her parents, brother Joseph Francisco (Virginia), sister Mary Louise Francisco Morgan Kreamelmeyer (Douglas Morgan and Bob Kreamelmeyer), and her sister Martha's husband Theo Wennen. She is survived by her husband Wood; sister Martha Wennen of Indianapolis, IN; children Jane Blair (Kim) of Salt Lake City UT, son Mark Copeland (Becky) of Lilburn GA, son Robert Copeland (Gwen) of Harrisburg, PA and son Carter Copeland (Leslie) of Houston TX; nine grandchildren Douglas, Karen, and Lane (Mark), Alex and Sam (Rob), Emily and John (Jane), Megan and Daniel (Carter); and seven great grandchildren. Memorial donations may be made to Prince of Peace Catholic Church, 305 West State St, Madison, IN 47250, in honor of Betty Francisco Copeland.

A Memorial Mass and Internment Service will be announced and held at a later date in Madison, Indiana.

Miss Madison seeking to relocate shop to Madison

Racing team wants to bring equipment home from Seattle

BY BOB DEMAREE

Miss Madison Racing approached Madison's Redevelopment Commission at its meeting on Tuesday asking for support in acquiring land at Shun Pike and Hutchinson Lane for a new boat shop that relocate the teams operations from a Seattle suburb back to Madison.

Charlie Grooms

"This is the 60th year of Miss Madison and we want to move back home," said owner representative Charlie Grooms. "A lot has happened in our world over the 60 years, but we have seriously outgrown what we have down on Milton Street. I am sure you have heard the talk among people of us living and doing our work in Seattle. That's true, but that will come to an end. We are now up to three boats, a multitude of engines, and a significant investment in equipment, and we need a place to put it."

Grooms said the team needs "roughly five acres" with plans for a 60 x 100 foot building initially and then a 100 x 50 foot structure added later. He said the concerns they have "to stay at the level of competition we currently are, is we need to be in an area where we can make some noise. We own a dyno — a test cell that runs the engines at 100% full power — and the turbine engine at full power makes a lot of noise. Not for a very long period of time. Sometimes you just run them for a minute or two, but it does make a lot of noise. We don't feel we can do that downtown at least without rattling the walls and making the neighbors upset, so we would like something a little bit out of town."

Grooms said Miss Madison Racing currently has three full-time employees and 36 part-time or volunteer workers. "We plan to bring all of that back to Madison where it is now all pretty much located in Seattle," said Grooms.

He said the move will not occur for at least two years.

"We have two years left in our contract with HomeStreet Bank, and we anticipate that they will renew that, but irrespective of that, we're in a 20,000 foot facility" in Seattle, where Grooms said expenses are high. So, besides wanting to be back home in Madison, Grooms expressed it also makes good economic sense for the racing team operations to be in Madison.

Matt Wirth, the city's Economic Development executive director, said he is in the process of preliminarily developing those parcels of city-owned property at Shun Pike and Hutchinson Lane, and that process of laying that out "is not a speedy process."

Wirth asked how soon Miss Madison Racing would need the property, and Grooms responded, "We're ready to start building something, but we're not in the position to move into or do those things. I think we're going to be compelled to be where we are at least for the duration of the contract with HomeStreet, which is two years. This process could take some time for us both, so let's get started now. We can answer the questions and do the preliminary work. We have the drawings. We have our financial plan together in what we are trying to accomplish, but we just need some direction and what are our options, if any."

Wirth told the Redevelopment Commission that he will return with a proposal on how to move forward with the redevelopment on those parcels at Shun Pike and Hutchinson Lane. "I will definitely want your input before we move too much further, he said.

Redevelopment Commission Chairman John Grote asked Grooms if Miss Madison Racing is requesting that the land be donated?

"That would be the ask, but we are more than prepared to do whatever needs to get done to secure a facility," Grooms said. "Miss Madison needs to come home and we have several million dollars worth of equipment that we need to make sure is in the proper place and that it can continue at the level it has, which is a really high level."

Grote asked Grooms about the current state of the team's sport, H1 Unlimited Hydroplane Racing.

"The race sites are strong. The owner group is hit and miss. That's been kind of the ebbs and flows of the sport," Grooms said. "We have five solid race sites including Madison" all of which are parts of community festivals that occur in conjunction with the events.

Wirth noted that most of the parcels in the area Grooms mentioned are two acres, but Grooms said they would need at least four acres, requiring two parcels.

PROPERTY

Mayor Bob Courtney. "It is one of the largest contiguous undeveloped parcels in historic districts in the country. We need parking. We have made it a key initiative to attract a grocery store operator to downtown Madison. We have backed that with a market study that supports a retail environment for a grocery store operator. And we feel it's important for us to be able to market what we own, and that is by acquiring this property."

The building housed Ruler Foods from Feb. 8, 2011 through March 31, 2018, and since then has been empty. The property was been a strategic space of activity through much of the city of Madison's history. In 1849, the Madison Hotel, designed by architect Francis Costigan, was built and opened March 27, 1850, with a huge ball and dinner. The building later had various other uses until it was demolished in 1949 and Kroger grocery built on the site. In 1979, Kroger moved to Madison's hilltop and a JayC Foods Store took over the building in 1980 and remained there until it closed on Jan. 9, 2011. The space was then revamped as Ruler Foods.

The conditional purchase and sale agreement set a $525,000 purchase price for the building. The terms specified a $200,000 down payment, with 1% annual interest on the balance and a balloon payment of the remainder due 24 months from the date of executing the real estate contract. It also stipulates the lease agreement between K-Q Properties LLC and Kroger Limited Partnership/Jay C Food Stores be assigned to the City of Madison.

The agreement is contingent upon the consent and approval of the Madison Redevelopment Commission and/or Madison City Council, and all other necessary government boards, bodies and all necessary requirements for the purchase of property as required by Indiana Code. The agreement also provides for the Mayor to negotiate the terms with final approval by the Redevelopment Commission. Additionally, the agreement requires two appraisals with the purchase price being at or below the average of the two appraisals.

"There are multiple contingencies," said city attorney Joe Jenner. "This is just a starting point to allow us to get this property under some kind of contract in order to perform the necessary due diligence and to take a look at it, and to lock in a potential price that we have."

Commission Chairman John Grote spoke favorably about the proposal.

"We all agree with the investment in the downtown community that a grocery store is critical for the continued quality of life for residents of downtown and all of the investment that is going on down here," Grote said. "This is a prime piece of property in many regards, so hopefully we can turn that into a win to attract the right person to operate a grocery store for us."

The Commission unanimously approved allowing the Mayor to enter into negotiations, and to seek appraisals for the property.

Courtney said that the purchase of the property would not only "facilitate our growing efforts to attract a grocery store operator but also play nicely into our redevelopment and revitalization plans for our whole Second Street, Mulberry Street from Main to Vaughn corridor."

As part of the plans to improve the space at 120 East Second Street on the southwest corner of Second and Mulberry streets, Courtney said there also are plans to beautify and upgrade the city's parking lot on the northeast corner of Second and Mulberry streets with landscaping and improvements to the parking area located beside a former bakery building where the Madison Area Arts Alliance plans to create a huge "Kindness Matters" mural that will ultimately became another noteworthy destination in the city.

Speaking to Madison City Council later on Tuesday, Courtney said the two projects will work hand-in-hand to revitalize an area that is a center of activity and has already seen some private revitalization along the Mulberry corridor.

"That area is a very, very exciting area that is ripe for revitalization and what we've learned through a lot of strategy — and particularly through our PACE program — is it's just proven that where city capital is invested and we partner with the community, it attracts additional private investment," Courtney said.

Interviewed after the meeting, Courtney summarized that "today we presented the overall strategy in acquiring strategic parcels by the city to lead the revitalization efforts in several areas of downtown Madison. Improving our city gateways, eliminating blight, attracting private investment, destination development through public art, and gaining site control for the future development of a full-service downtown grocery are all key initiatives of this administration. With city council and redevelopment commission support, along with forging community-wide partnerships, the city is on track to achieving its goals of improving property values and the quality of life for all Madisonians. Economic development via investing in our community is a primary driver to achieve this result and I am grateful for all of the support."

liked. It fits our lifestyle, it has the emphasis on arts and music. It's a perfect fit for us.

"We also have three pre-school children, and we want to raise them around music and a vibrant community rich in history. We're closing on a downtown home in early March, and looking forward to our kids going to Lydia Middleton.

"Everybody we've met so far has been super supportive and friendly. Todd Boone has filled us in about the music scene. Brian Martin is helping us with the permit process so we can move our ice cream business here. And Jerry Wade at Mad Paddle has already booked us for some shows.

In addition to the ice cream business, Brent will be bringing his studio equipment to town. "I'm not sure how or when it will work out," says Brent, "but I hope to get that up and running eventually in Madison. I can record other musicians, of course, but I also use it to record my own original songs. I usually play all the instruments and end up with very complete versions of my songs."

"Our very first show is at Mad Paddle on March 5, which will be just a few days after we move here," says Catherine. "We're going to do our variety show that night, covering a wide range of styles and decades. Songs by Helen Reddy, Journey, Heart, Tiny Tim, The Eagles, Dolly Parton and even Led Zeppelin.

Handout

Brent and Catherine Evans form the music duo of Johnny & Sallie.

"Then on Saturday the 6th at Mad Paddle we have a show we call our 'Hip Trip Thru The Sixties.' It's everything from folk to psychedelic, like Jefferson Airplane, The Beatles, The Who, Mommas and the Papas and a bunch more.

"Brent plays guitar and keyboards, and I play guitar and mandolin. We use some backing tracks on some of the songs, so the sound is very full and fun. We hope everybody comes out that weekend so we can meet our new neighbors and share our music with Madison."

If you haven't heard Anthony, his style is equal parts classic Texas swing, Hank Williams country, and Chris Issaac charisma. Get on out to Thomas Family on Saturday and celebrate great live music. Mad Paddle also has a full Thursday through Saturday line up, as usual. And keep a sharp eye on Off-Broadway Taproom, they're slipping live music in there quite often lately.

Clarksville's exit could pave way for Madison in MSC

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison is scheduled to leave the Hoosier Hills Conference after this school year but a soft landing into a new conference may be right around the corner.

The Clarksville School Board voted recently to withdraw Clarksville from the Mid-Southern Conference, creating an opening that could be filled by Madison as early as next year. The conference, which includes such schools like Scottsburg, Salem, Austin and Silver Creek, is a natural fit in terms of enrollment size and geographic location and has long been a dream for those Madison fans wishing to find a new home.

Madison Athletic Director Joe Bronkella acknowledged that the school would be very interested in joining the MSC, but also noted that the school has already made plans to go the route of an independent for the next few years.

"We have our schedule set for next year. Our current plan is independence," Bronkella said. "If the opportunity to join a conference arises, we would definitely look at the pros and cons and make a decision that is best for our school. The Mid-Southern Conference is definitely intriguing. We are very familiar with many of their schools since we play many of them in most sports.

"If the administration agrees that it is a good fit, we would definitely apply," he added.

The Mid-Southern Conference was formed in 1958 and currently includes 10 schools, most of which are within a 35-minute hub around the Indiana suburbs of Louisville. Of the nine remaining schools, Madison played or will play five of those schools in boys basketball this year and seven of the nine in girls basketball. In all team sports, Madison is currently aligned in sectionals in which it is the only non-MSC member.

Madison's enrollment during the last classification period two years ago was 867, which would make it the second-largest school among the MSC members. Silver Creek (875) is the largest while Austin (376) is the smallest. Seven of the current MSC members are in Class 3A with Eastern (Pekin) and Austin both in 2A. Madison is the smallest school in the HHC, with Jennings County at 1,203 the second-smallest. Jeffersonville, at 2,035 students, is the largest.

School size is the reason Clarksville Athletic Director Levi Carmichael cited for leaving the conference that the school has been with since the beginning. Clarksville's enrollment is currently 436 but is expected to decline when the new classifications are posted this spring.

2A GIRLS BASKETBALL SECTIONAL

Struggling Rebels still too much for Milan in 41-17 win

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

VERSAILLES — Southwestern wasn't exactly humming on all cylinders offensively, but the Rebels played more than well enough to dispatch Milan 41-17 in the opening round of the Class 2A Girls Basketball Sectional at South Ripley on Tuesday.

The Rebels shot just 25% (12-for-49) from the floor, including 4-of-25 (16%) on 3-point attempts and committed 14 turnovers in the game while handing out eight assists.

But Southwestern compensated for that poor offensive showing with a stellar performance on the defensive end, holding Milan to just 17% (7-of-42) shooting overall and forcing 31 turnovers with 27 via the steal.

The end result was an ugly win but a win nonetheless and now that the calendar has turned to February, Southwestern coach Devin Brierly is more than happy to take it.

"Survive and advance at this time of the year. I'm glad that we were on the winning end of it," Brierly said. "We do have some things that we need to clean up but I'm glad that we have two more days of practice to do it before we come back on Friday."

Southwestern (13-8) essentially ended the contest in the first six minutes when the Rebels scored the first 12 points of the game. But while the Rebels were in control throughout, they never quite shook the pesky Indians who hung around just enough to keep the game interesting.

Southwestern held Milan to 1-of-20 shooting in the first half and took a 22-5 lead into halftime and built that advantage to more than 20 early in the third quarter when an Allie Wilberding basket pushed the Rebels ahead 27-7.

Milan (1-15) cut the margin to 17 (30-13) by the end of the third and got to within 15 early in the fourth on an Audrey Schmidt basket before Southwestern finally pulled away. The final 24-point margin was the Rebels' largest of the game.

Southwestern had beaten Milan by nearly 50 points in early December and with a huge matchup with Switzerland County waiting on Friday in the semifinals, Brierly admitted that her team may have been looking ahead.

"You can say one game at a time or one step at a time but in the back of their minds, they're ready for Friday," Brierly said. "But we're all glad that we got to play tonight and to get the Tuesday night game."

Southwestern's Ellie Foley drives to the basket during the Rebels' win over Milan in the sectional opener at South Ripley on Tuesday.

Ashton Goode scored 10 points to lead Southwestern which saw eight different players in the scoring column. Trinity McLain had nine points, Isabel Brooks had eight points and 11 rebounds, Ellie Foley had four points and eight steals, and Ashley Fulton had one point and seven steals.

South Ripley survived North Decatur to win 33-28 in Tuesday's other first-round game. The host Raiders will face South Decatur in the sectional semifinals on Friday.

Hanover swept in 2 matches by Transy

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Hanover College volleyball lost a pair of three-set sweeps at the hands of Transylvania at home on Tuesday.

The Panthers, who entered the contests with a 5-1 record, lost the opener 25-15, 25-23, 25-20 and dropped the nightcap 25-20, 25-23, 25-18.

Despite the lopsided final scores, Hanover was in both matches until the end but couldn't pull out the crucial set victories needed in order to keep the match going.

In the first match, Emma Harmon, a sophomore from Carmel, had seven kills while Maddie Edwards, a junior from Jasper, had five kills. Kelsey Ketcham, a junior from Mishawaka, had five kills, 17 assists, eight digs and an ace, Amber Miller, a senior from Louisville, had two aces, two assists and two digs, Emma Rolf, a junior from Lebanon, had an ace and nine digs, Josie McClara, a sophomore from Jamestown, had four blocks, Adrianne Vance, a sophomore from Indianapolis, had two blocks, and Aubrey Walton, a freshman from Linton, had eight assists.

Madison's Gracie True (5) has signed to play volleyball at Franklin College.

Madison's True to play volleyball at Franklin

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Gracie True emerged as Madison's leader both on and off the court this past season and it is that leadership quality that should serve her well as the Cub volleyball star heads off to college in the fall.

True officially signed to play volleyball at Franklin College last Friday, the first of what coach Camille Crim hopes will be a flurry of signings from the program in the coming years.

If True is the first to head to the next level, Madison couldn't have a better representative. The always smiling True earned Madison Courier Volleyball Player of the Year honors this year and it was her leadership that was a big reason why.

"We're really excited. Gracie is an awesome kid and an awesome player but an even better person," Crim said. "I know she'll thrive and do so well and I'm just so excited for what she has ahead."

True's role for the Cubs this past season was setter and she did it well. The senior recorded 558 assists during the season and went over 1,000 sets for her career. She also had 203 digs, 27 service aces and 19 digs, all in the top 20 in the area.

But it was True's intangibles that stood above her play. The unquestioned leader both in the locker room and on the floor, it was True who helped keep the Cubs together in what was at times a difficult season.

"She's just a leader and I think she'll be a leader in college as well," Crim said.

True said that she looked at several places when deciding on a college but the first time she set foot on Franklin's campus she knew that's where she wanted to be.

"I've been to Franklin three or four times but that first time I walked into the gym I said 'Ooo, this is where I want to go," said True. "On another visit we were there for a showcase and I got to talk to the coach and that's when everything started happening. Then I went there again and that's when I really realized that this was where I wanted to go."

True plans to major in elementary education and in that respect, Franklin was the perfect fit.

"One of my main keys was finding a school that had a major that I wanted," True said.

True will likely fill the same role at Franklin that she played at Madison, setting up the hitters, and Crim can't wait to see what she learns.

"It's going to be fun to see her get specialized coaching in setting, where she can concentrate on just that," Crim said. "I told her I can't wait for her to come back and show us all the things that she has learned."

"We loved the conference we were in, we loved the relationships we had, it was just, in order for us to be competitive at the level we are currently at, we had to do something to kind of match where our kids were at and give our coaches an ability to play some other schools that are enrollment-wise the same size and talent-wise the same ability as well," Carmichael told the News & Tribune in Jeffersonville.

REBELS

Southwestern will now take on Switzerland (17-5) on Friday with a trip to the championship game on the line. Switzerland escaped with a 40-38 win two weeks ago and Brierly knows that her team will be ready to play.

"We've got to expect it to be a knock-down, drag-out game," Brierly said. "They're fired up. I think they're still a little bitter about what happened when we played there and I think they have that fire in their bellies still. Hopefully we come out guns a blazing and hope that it works out in our favor."

HANOVER

In the second match, Ketcham had nine kills, two blocks, six assists and seven digs, Ella Reed, a freshman from Lexington, Kentucky, had five kills, Emma McPeek, a junior from North Vernon, had four kills, Rolf had three aces and an assist, Walton had an ace, Maura Dankoski, a junior from Fishers, had four blocks, Abigail Edds, a sophomore from Louisville, had a block, Walton had 15 assists, Meredith Deckard, a sophomore from Bedford, had seven digs, and Casey Dunn, a freshman from Fort Thomas, Kentucky, had six digs.

Hanover is now 5-3 overall and 2-2 in games that count toward the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference standings.

The Panthers host Bluffton for a pair of matches on Saturday at Collier Arena beginning at 2 p.m.

Still grieving my mom after three years

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My mom passed away three years ago, and it's still hard on me. I am 42 years old. Am I too old to cry? And should I be over her by now? — Missing Mom

Dear Missing Mom: Two resounding no's. You are never too old to cry, and there's no getting "over" a huge loss like the loss of your mother. There's just learning to live with the grief. I came across this quote recently that I have to share:

"As for grief, you'll find it comes in waves. When the ship is first wrecked, you're drowning, with wreckage all around you. Everything floating around you reminds you of the beauty and the magnificence of the ship that was. ... You find some piece of the wreckage and you hang on. ... Maybe it's a happy memory or a photograph. Maybe it's a person who is also floating. For a while, all you can do is float.

"In the beginning, the waves are 100 feet tall and crash over you without mercy. They come 10 seconds apart and don't even give you time to catch your breath. ... After a while ... you'll find the waves are still 100 feet tall, but they come further apart. ... In between, you can breathe; you can function. You never know what's going to trigger the grief. It might be a song, a picture, a street intersection, the smell of a cup of coffee. It can be just about anything. ... But in between waves, there is life.

"Somewhere down the line, and it's different for everybody, you find that the waves are only 80 feet tall. Or 50 feet tall. ... and you can see them coming. An anniversary, a birthday, or Christmas, or landing at O'Hare. ... When it washes over you, you know that somehow you will, again, come out the other side. Soaking wet, sputtering, still hanging on to some tiny piece of the wreckage, but you'll come out. Take it from an old guy. The waves never stop coming, and somehow you don't really want them to. But you learn that you'll survive them. And other waves will come. And you'll survive them too. If you're lucky, you'll have lots of scars from lots of loves. And lots of shipwrecks." — G. Snow

Dear Annie: I'm a 72-year-old man, my lady friend is 71. My problem is that she has two adult sons who are still being treated like 10-year-old boys by their mother and two aunts. They're both in their 50s. Neither one of these guys will keep a job but a few months. Both are convicted felons. I love their mother, but she lets them use her. We have talked about it, and she agrees with me that she should stop. But she just can't seem to let them make it for themselves. I bought her a car, and now she's taking them back and forth to work. I say let them get a ride on their own. I could go on and on, but what I want to know is, should I leave? Her health is not that good, and I don't want to hurt her. But I'm fed up with these boys using her. — Can't Watch

Dear Can't Watch: She and her sisters have been babying these overgrown boys for 50 years. It's unlikely to stop now. So it's really a question of if you can make peace with that. Try relinquishing any idea of control over the situation and focusing on yourself and not what your girlfriend or her sons "should be doing." But at the end of the day, if you find the situation too irritating, it might be time to remove yourself from it.

Wedding on the horizon

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My husband is estranged from his adult children and ex-wife, through no fault of his own. His son is getting married this summer, and recently we learned that we'll be invited, despite his having cut off contact with his dad years ago. We're not sure whether to go to the ceremony or not. It will most likely be awkward for both of us. — RSVP Pondering

Dear RSVPP: You're far more likely to regret not going than you are to regret going. If you go and it's awkward, then at least you can say that you went and put it behind you. Sit it out and your husband might always wonder whether he should have gone.

And keep in mind, you can keep it short and sweet and leave right after the ceremony or early in the reception.

Dear Annie: I've been with my husband for six years, and we've been married for four. There are a lot of issues and problems. One of these he knew I was battling when he first met me about two years prior to us getting together. I've been in many long-term relationships and am pretty accommodating of partner's wishes and idiosyncrasies in general, and I can brush off disagreements easily. But my husband said something recently that has sent me into a tailspin. He said he wants us to have a girlfriend. I can't, and I won't. And now just the thought of him and another women even talking drives me out of my mind. But I can't get past the fact that he wants to sleep with another woman. Do I just force myself to go with this and find a woman who is reasonably agreeable to me? Otherwise, he said he's going to divorce me. I hurt like I've never hurt in my life. — Worried Wife

Dear Worried Wife: Your husband pulled the old bait and switch. He presented himself as a monogamous man who wanted to be with you alone. Now he wants you to be OK with his seeing another woman — and not just that, but he wants you to see her, too. You didn't sign up for any of this, and it's unfair of him to expect you to simply go along.

I always recommend marriage counseling before separation or divorce. Give it an honest shot. But if it turns out that your lifestyles are irreconcilable, know that it's no reflection on your attractiveness or worthiness.

Dear Annie: In a recent column, you mentioned how men experiencing ED should talk to their doctors about it, because it can be a sign of heart disease. Seeing as it is National Heart Month, I wanted to mention that heart disease should also be on the radar of every woman in America. It's our No. 1 killer! And I learned recently that some risk factors, such as diabetes, heighten the risk of heart disease more significantly in women than in men. A diet rich in whole grains, fruits, vegetables (including starchy veggies like potatoes) has been shown to be a boon for cardiovascular health. Although I believe you've mentioned this in a previous column already, I would like to strongly recommend Dr. Caldwell Esselstyn's book "Prevent and Reverse Heart Disease," for anyone who is concerned about her heart health. — Take Care of the Ticker

Dear Take Care: Thanks for the timely message. That book is a wealth of information on the link between diet and cardiovascular disease.

PETS OF THE WEEK

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has a number of dogs and cats and kittens available for adoption.

Angelica is young adult domestic short hair cat with mostly grey and orange patches. She is a sweet girl who likes to find a comfortable place to sit. She has been spayed and received her rabies vaccination so her adoption fee is $80.

Diana is a very happy — and big — puppy. She will need a home that can give her the time she needs to be trained and play. She has been spayed and received her rabies vaccination so her adoption fee is $100.

The shelter would like to thank the community for its support. Please visit sisaveapet.com to see a full list of pets ready for adoption.

The shelter's new adoption policy requires that all animals be spay/neutered and have their rabies vaccination before they can leave the facility. Animals that haven't been neutered and vaccinated can be pre-adopted but they will remain at the shelter until their surgery is completed. Adoption fees have also changed with dogs set at $100 and cats $80. The shelter is still by appointment only, so if you would like to make an appointment please email the shelter at email animal.shelter39@jeffersoncounty.in.gov or call 812-273-1788.

The shelter has pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption for viewing at www.sisaveapet.com.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

Those with missing pets can call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption. Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours. For animal control issues in Madison, call 812-265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call 812-265-2648.
